

LLama and alpaca poo needed for a research study at University of Surrey

Gut parasites can cause serious problems in llamas and alpacas. We would like to find out how common gut parasites are among llamas and alpacas in the UK and which animals are most likely to be infected. We hope that the study will lead to better management of gut parasites in llamas and alpacas.

If you keep llamas and alpacas in the UK, please consider taking part in our study. We will ask you to collect llama or alpaca poo and send it to us. We will test the poo samples in our lab to see what parasites are present.

For further information please contact: